UNCONSCIOUS IN A CAB.

A BROOKLYN WOMAN IN A HOSPITAL AND HER MONEY GONE.

Mrs. Lydia Wilson, a widow, who lives with her married daughter, Mrs. Caroline Walsh, in a three-story brownstone house at No. 583 Cariton-ave, found herself in the Homocopathic Hospital yes-terday morning. She had been brought there in an unconscious condition by a cabman on Friday night. She said that she had been shopping in Manhattan; had gone into a restaurant in Union Square and had then hired a cab in which to go

Mrs. Wilson declared that she had drawn $600, half from the Greenwich Bank and the other from the Bowery Savings Bank. She did not have it with her when she was brought to the hospital.

The woman was taken to the hospital at 8 o'clock in a cab driven by John Stack, of No. 170

West-st., Manhattan. He said the woman had got into the cab at Union Square and had asked to be driven to Brooklyn. When he reached this end of the Bridge he looked in to ask what street she wished to go to and found that she was unconscious. He at once drove to the Clermoni-ave, station and from there to the Homocopathic Hospital. There the doctors diagnosed the case as alcoholic coma. It is hoped that when she gets well she may be able to explain more. The daughter has searched the house and finds that her mother's bankbooks are missing. It is also said that the woman had $200 with her when she left the house in Brooklyn in the morning. When searched at the hospital $6 in money was found on her.

With nearly $100,000 in hand, steps were taken to erect the building. The committee accepted the plans drawn by John Daus, and on July 16, 1834, contracts for the erection of the building were signed with the firm of L. W. Seaman Sons. The laying of the corneration on October 22 of the same year was participated in by the entire German Population, both High and Low.

through next Sunday, has been arranged for.

The plan to erect a German hospital in Brooklyn originated with the Plattdeutsche Volksfest Verein as far back as 1886. This society boasts of the distinction of having the largest membership of any kindred organization. On October 27, 1886, it was resolved to build the institution. Accord-ingly twenty-seven lots in St. Nicholas-ave, and Stanhope and Stockholm sts. were purchased for $10,000, and appeals for contributions met with liberal response on the part of the public. Soon, however, it became apparent that almost all of the contributors were Low Germans. A special meeting was called on May 5 of the following year, and it was resolved to select ninety delegates to the Plattdeutsche Verein, who should form a new organization under the name of the German Hospital Society. It was announced that all Germans would have equal voice in the affairs of the organization, which was incorporated on September 27. The building lots and $502 were transferred to the new society by the Plattdeutsche Verein. A fair was held in the Clermont-ave. Rink in 1833, and netted $45,000. In December of the same year John Hein, who had given a large endowment to the German Hospital in Manhattan, subscribed $25,000 to the fund of the Brooklyn

THE NEW FIELDING INDICTMENTS

EFFORTS WILL BE MADE TO HAVE THEM DISMISSED.

Charles J. Patterson, counsel for Robert W. Fielding, former Deputy Commissioner of City Works, has announced that on May 29 he will appear before a Justice in the Supreme Court and move the dismissal of four extra indictments which have recently been found against Fielding by the Grand Jury. Mr. Fielding, who was indicted and convicted of fraudulently auditing bills, whereby the city was robbed, obtained an order for a new trial from the Court of Appeals. District-Attorney Steele, seeing a stronger line of evidence in some of the admissions which Mr. Fielding made on the stand in the Phillips-Willis trial, at once pressed new indictments against the former Deputy Commissioner

The new move on the part of Mr. Patterson will carry the trial over until next year. If his motion to dismiss is denied he will probably carry it up to the higher courts.

On account of the disappearance of the principal witness in the Hepburn-Winant bribery case, which was to have been brought to trial by District-Attorney Steele to-morrow, the case will have to go by the board. When the case was moved for trial, Mr. Steele sent for Patrick Wall, a waiter in the Sinolair House, who is the principal witness. Wall

A BURGLAR ALARM SUMMONS TWO POLICE-MEN TO JORALEMON-ST.

"B-z-z-zt-b-r-r-r!" "Holy smoke!" ejaculated the night superin-tendent at the American District Telegraph Office, at No. 168 Montague-st., last evening, at 6:40 o'clock, "that's the burglar alarm of No. 143 Joralemon-st., where the folks went away for the summer last week." And so it proved to be, for when Mrs. Belle Hazen locked up her house at that number a few days ago the American District people adjusted the burglar alarm so that "nothing would be touched," as the agent said.

"B-z-z-zt-b-r-r-r!" went the alarm again. "Get Sergeant Vanderberg at once," said the nervous night superintendent. Sergeant Vanderberg and Officer Flannagan were soon summoned.

A few mornings ago, on the same block, in Mr. Marshall's house, at Clinton and Joralemon sts., a watchman answered a burglar alarm, and his head was nearly split open with an axe by a negro The remembrance of this thief who was inside. conjured up a horrible vision in the minds of Vanderberg and Flannagaa, but they got their revolvers and night sticks, and went to No. 143. As they reached the bottom step of the boardedup mansion they looked at each other, and the cold perspiration broke out.

"Well, old man, if they kill me, just look out for my folks until they get something to do, will you?"

said one.

Then the two officers ascended the steps. It took Sergeant Vanderberg about five minutes to fit the key, and when at last the outside door was open it took him another five minutes to turn the key in the inner door.

"Hold on." said Flannagan. "wait till I see if this 'ere pistol's all right." And with that both men cocked and examined their pistols.

"That other watchman had his head split open almost like a watermelon." suggested Flannagan, reassuringly, to his chief.

"Well, we've got to go in," said Vanderberg, and in they went, but not without first lighting an ancient-looking lantern and re-examining their pistols.

ancient-looking lantern and re-examining their pistols.

By this time there was a crowd of excited spectators on the sidewalk. Just what passed through the minds of the officers as they ransacked the house can be left to the imagination.

At the end of twenty minutes both watchmen reappeared at the door with very white faces and with rather sheepish expressions.

"Well, did ye kill 'im?" chirped a boy on a bicycle, who seemed deeply disappointed at the entire absence of blood and revolver shots.

"No," said Vanderberg, "the durined old burglar alarm went off without any one doing a thing to it." But it was a mighty bad quarter of an hour for Vanderberg and Flannagan.

A JURY WILL HAVE TO DECIDE. In answer to the application of Captain James W.

Dixon for a writ of mandamus to compel the Queens Board of Education to reinstate him as clerk, counsel for the Board yesterday submitted to Justice Carretson in the Supreme Court Cham-bers an affidavit that Captain Dixon's case involved a question of facts. Captain Dixon was removed as clerk, he alleges, without charges being preferred against him, and this he says was illegal, as he was a veteran of the Civil War, having been a captain in the Union Army. The answer put in by the Board necessitates the case being decided by a jury Justice Garretton granted an alternative writ of mandamus.

THE OLD "EAGLE TREE" DEAD.

ONE OF THE LAST HAUNTS OF THE AMERI-CAN BIRD ON LONG ISLAND.

People of East Moriches are mourning the fact that the old historic "eagle tree" is now dead, and that in a few years it will probably disappear altogether. After weathering many a storm and withstanding several flerce fires, it has at last succumbed to the elements and is gradually disinte-

The tree was first occupied by a pair of eagles late in the last century. It was the last known resort of the great American bald-headed eagle on Long Island. Each year after they first appeared in the old tree the eagles returned and built their nest and raised their young. When the Manor and Sag Harbor branch of the Long Island Rallroad was built only one hundred yards from the tree the eagles abandoned it and sought a new retreat. But they did not seem to be pleased with treat. But they did not seem to be pleased with their new quarters, and in 1886 or 1887 they returned and once more set up their home in the broad branches of the aged tree.

Those who came to Riverhead and Moriches would frequently see the white-feathered head of the eagle family searing majestically over the country or else perched with dignity on the gnaried branches of the oak and keeping watch over his mate. About six years ago the family was broken up through the cruelty of a hunter, who wounded the eagle so badly that he afterward died, and his body was found at the foot of the tree which had been his home for so many years. Every one feit a sense of personal loss, and it would have fared hard with the hunter had he appeared about this time.

After that a pair of ospreys took possession of the nest for a while, but it soon fell apart.

J. Buell Terry, of East Moriches, owns the land upon which the tree stands. He says that the old tree has been marvellously hardy. It has, however, reached its last days, but Mr. Terry says that he will never allow it to be cut down.
